Petals of Platitude

Poetry Corner

Roses, violets and daisies branded less.
Sweet melodies made.
Stars put to shame,
The moon was promised,
And the world too.
Promises made, battles waged and blood spilt.
Nothing lost, nothing gained.
Lost, flawed and injured mortals remain.
Distracted by our own device.
We failed to see all the lies.
It was simple all along.
Respecting oneself and the other.

Omar Faroque Sem VI

Curiosity leading to clanger.
Courage leading to conquer.
Mistakes do not matter.
As long as we try harder,
Success doesn't lie any deeper.
So,
After having walked those fields of thorns.
Resist the rose you see.
Painful at first it might seem.
Pain, sweat and blood was spent,
Not for a rose,
But a garden instead.
